Opposition State Convention, 29th of March.

After full consultation with many of our friends in various parts of the State, it has been deemed most expedient to fix the 29rm or Mason next, as the most eligible time for bolding a Convention of the Opposition to Democrocy in this State. In compliance, therefore, with this sentiment, we hereby anomembling of that body; and take this occa-Flon to urge upon our friends in every county In the State to call primary meetings on the first Monday of February or March, to apbe a full representation.

Should the bill be rejected in the Senate, as sis probable, it will be by Democratic votes, and those mainly from the slaveholding States. And in that case, the Republicans will still have it in their power to appeal to the sympathies of both foreign and nativeborn citizens, and ask : "Who now are the friends of the 'the poor man?' Who are the friends of the foreigner, whether alien or naturalized? Let the votes in both Houses of Congress tell. How did the slave-holding interest go? Against the bill! That interest and that clone, withheld from the poor man, native and foreign, the home, which we, Republicans, strove to give him, and which we will give him, as soon as we get into power."

Do not these facts present to the people of the South, food for the most serious reflection? They can but know that they have nothing to gain by the division of the people of the United States into two great parties-a Northern and a Southern party. The South is much the weaker section in point of numbers. Soon the sectional equality in the Senate will have passed away, never to be regained. while in the popular branch of the National Legislature a united North would present an overwhelming majority against a united South! How long would the Union last after the permanent establishment of such a party line? To a dissolution of the Union, there can be no doubt, nine tenths of the people of the South are firmly opposed; and yet they, or a majority of them, have yielded their support to party leaders, whose whole course of policy for years past, it has been clearly seen. ended towards, and if not checked would evitably result in the formation of two great parties, strictly sectional in their character. This course of policy is still persisted by these leaders and their organs in the South. They still keep up the slavery agitation, when there is no practical question upon the subject calling for the decision of the people of the United States.
